

Innovation on Demand: Strategies for Addressing Family Violence During COVID-19

Who should attend these virtual dialogues: Domestic violence professionals, child and family trauma therapists, child welfare professionals, educators, home visitors, community leaders, and health professionals

Part 1 • Monday, May 4th, 12-1:30pm PT / 3-4:30pm ET

Implementing Culturally-Responsive and Trauma-Informed Telehealth Services and Family-Centered Practice during COVID-19

In Part 1, presenters will share how they offer virtual services with families impacted by domestic violence during the COVID-19 pandemic. Panelists will discuss equity and safety issues in telehealth counseling. They will share what it takes to create safer virtual environments with children and adult survivors of domestic violence and abusive partners.

Register here: <https://bit.ly/3d4onGX>

Part 2 • Thursday, May 14th, 12-1:30pm PT / 3-4:30pm ET

Advancing Collaboration during COVID-19 to Protect Children and Families

In Part 2, presenters share new ways they are working with community partners when there are concerns about family violence. Presenters will focus on partnerships between child welfare and domestic violence professionals, including during child welfare screening and investigation. The presenters will talk about why collaboration is important to effectively help families experiencing domestic violence when there are safety concerns.

Register here: <https://bit.ly/2YbYnoQ>

Part 3 • Wednesday, May 20th, 12-1:30pm PT / 3-4:30pm ET

Well-being as a Pathway to Safety

In this virtual session, we will share how current shifts in practice can improve future efforts to prevent and respond to family violence and inequities of care. Reducing a family's stress and making family well-being a priority can help families be safer. Presenters will discuss how communities can move beyond surveillance and monitoring to build resilience and strengthen families. Presenters will also share best practices for trauma-informed telehealth and virtual services.

Register here: <https://bit.ly/2Y9TIsM>

Questions? Accessibility needs? Contact Jess Fournier, JFournier@futureswithoutviolence.org.